

Kelley A. Nardell-Powell
Program Manager
Environmental Protection Division - Air Protection Branch
Georgia Department of Natural Resources

Kelley A. Nardell-Powell has worked for the Department of Natural Resources Environmental Protection Division for approximately ten years in the Air Protection Branch. She has held Environmental Outreach, Clean Air Campaign, Special Projects Coordinator and Public Affairs Manager positions. Prior to her employment with EPD, Kelley worked for the Cobb Chamber of Commerce, Georgia State University, and the National Federation of Independent Business in communications, marketing, and transportation demand management-related positions. She also has experience in small business administration and management.

Nardell-Powell's current duties include helping with the implementation of mobile and area source emissions reduction strategies including the Vehicle Emissions Inspection/Maintenance Program and anti-idling practices. In addition, the Public Affairs Unit that she manages, coordinates Air Branch public participation activities and supports organizations such as The Clean Air Campaign. Nardell-Powell also co-administers the EPD-wide Mentoring Program, and participates in the State Air Quality Partners committee to allocate federal funding for transportation demand management strategies and evaluation. Finally, her program implements voluntary emissions reduction initiatives such as the Georgia Adopt-A-School Bus engine retrofit program.

Nardell-Powell is a current member of the American Society for Training and Development, the Environmental Education Alliance of Georgia, and the Georgia Center for Nonprofits. She holds a Masters Degree in Communications and Marketing, with an emphasis on nonprofit organizational management, from Georgia State University. She also has a Bachelors Degree in Public Relations, with a minor in Spanish language and literature, from the University of Georgia. She continually updates her professional development with ongoing training in human resources, communication, training and transportation demand management curriculum.

A native of Miami, FL, she enjoys writing, travel, and classical piano.
